ENOLOGY

Vinification starts after a manual harvest in crates, with immediate pressing.
After cold clarification, temperature-controlled fermentation takes place at roughly 13/14 degrees followed by decanting. After four months of standing in stainless-steel vats, the wine is then bottled in January 2023.

TASTING NOTE

Intense, pervasive perfume with notes of tropical fruit and scents of herbs.
The flavor is pleasantly minerality, fresh and balanced with an aftertaste that reflects the olfactory sensations.

FOOD PAIRINGS

Langhe DOC Bianco is a wine of impressive structure, that can be aged for up to two years. It is best served at a temperature between eight and ten degrees. It can be drunk as an aperitif, but is at its best paired with starters, first courses and fish-based dishes.
